For Andover It Was A Very Good Year

By Robert E. Finneran
Managing Editor

It was a very good year, as the song says.

For Andover, 1968 started out real white, then turned green, in the form of potential tax dollars.

As the year opened, the town was inundated by 20 inches of snow, not the most pleasant way for the daily traveler to begin the new year. It had to get better, and, indeed, it did as the days and months progressed.

In an era when industry is needed to aid the already overburdened property taxpayer, Andover struck gold this year, although there is still a stigma hanging over one industrial proposition.

First it was the Gillette Company which announced plans to locate in Lowell Junction and began construction of its toiletries division. With construction underway and moving along at a rapid pace in the spring of the year, the firm announced that it planned almost immediate expansion of the facility, once it is occupied.

Planned occupancy is for the spring of 1969, at which time the company plans expansion to accommodate additional office and cafeteria space.

The town made provision for the Gillette company at a special town meeting the year before, providing for road development and installation of water and sewer lines to the industrial area.

In addition to Gillette, other industrial firms expressed an interest in locating there and have made plans to take advantage of railroad spurs and the access roads being provided by the town.

While the development has meant an expenditure of town funds, there is a substantial "profit" to the town's treasury from the construction of the new plants. Also, there will be additional employment and additional revenue available within the community.

Gillette was the first major industry to come to Andover in several years. As its plant progressed in construction, yet another major industry, this one already located here, indicated its desire to expand and remain a part of Andover.

The Raytheon Company and a special town meeting in July, produced the top story of 1968.

Raytheon - the town's top taxpayer - obtained an option from Danton Realty Trust to locate a new plant on close to 200 acres of land in West Andover at the junction of Routes 93 and 133.

The plant was to replace the current facility in Shawsheen, with that property to be converted into warehouse facilities.

A special town meeting was scheduled for the usual location, Memorial Auditorium, but when the thousands of people arrived, the meeting was adjourned to another night, this time at the gymnasium and cage at Phillips Academy.

Television and public address equipment, provided by Raytheon, was set up in the two locations as close to 3,000 voters turned out to vote on the rezoning of the area to allow the industry to locate there.

By a three to one vote, the rezoning was approved and Raytheon,

Andover Firm Assumes Bus Service To Area

Bus service for the Greater Lawrence communities and to Boston, now has an Andover address.

The Trombly Motor Coach Service of Lupine Road has replaced the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority service to the area and to date has been providing the necessary service for bus patrons.

Service is expected to be improved on Thursday when Frank Trombly owner of the firm will have additional buses available to accommodate patrons.

The MBTA terminated service on Dec. 27 - the final date for which Greater Lawrence communities had contracted for service from the sprawling metropolitan facility.

Andover, during the past year has spent several thousand dollars for both bus and train service to the deficit-ridden MBTA.

As of Friday, the Trombly firm assumed the service and is supposed to provide service free of tax contributions by municipalities.

Frank Trombly said Monday, that if his dream comes true, his present operations on Lupine road will not accommodate his entire operation.

He said he had mechanics and

Town Manager Takes A Look Ahead

By Richard J. Bowen
Town Manager

What lies ahead for the Town of Andover in 1969? With the buoying events of the last several days so fresh in mind - Apollo 8, the release of the crew of the Pueblo - it is tempting and certainly more politic to be optimistic about the future and at the same time to be unimindful and even forgetful of many other significant happenings of the past year, all of which took place somewhere else. At least it would seem so, wouldn't it? Memphis is in Tennessee, isn't it. What about Los Angeles and Brownsville and Chicago and Washington and King, Kennedy, McCoy, Washington, Daley, Yorty - names in the news from other places but, yet, names to be found in our local telephone directory. Our future? In the next twelve months it certainly will not be influenced even remotely by these names and places or others, such as Detroit or Baltimore or Montgomery or Newark or Kansas City, because they are so far away from us in distance, aren't they? Or is it because we just won't let it happen?

And what are the other more important things for Andover? Expenses will rise; taxes will go up. More schools will need to be built and staffed. The end of polluting the Merrimack will be in sight. Solid waste disposal will continue to be a problem, though some progress should be made in meeting the problem for at least a few years ahead.

People will continue to come to Andover to live. Industry will find its way here also. One could say that 1969 holds more of the same in experiences as 1968. But, if it is possible to look at 1969 in terms of what could or should happen, it could be a year full of exciting activity, worthwhile and creative - even dramatic. It should be a year of looking inwardly, of taking stock of that which we have in terms of resources and mustering them so that Andover will continue to be the kind of community that it wants to be.

The year ahead should be a year of activity in developing and establishing goals. What is the Andover of the future to be in terms of education, government, physical and natural resources, social and cultural advantages? What is it to be in terms of people? At a recent Special Town Meeting, one speaker suggested to those present that Andover was faced with the choice of being urban or suburban with, presumably, one choice a lot more dire or drastic than the other. I choose to look at this choice of alternatives as really one of looking at other communities, particularly in their total life span, and asking what wasn't done or what was done that produced such undesirable and really unworthy results.

ties, made plans for a new building. An initial step was to obtain a building permit to install a sanitary treatment plant. Then, about 12 abutters of the area, brought court action against the town, contending that the town meeting action was illegal.

A ruling by the Superior Court found that the town's action was indeed legal in rezoning the area and that Raytheon could build in the location.

The neighbors, however, continued the case with an appeal to the state Supreme Court, which now has the case. The appeal is on the finding of the lower court and a speedy decision has been requested.

Raytheon has indicated that it wants to remain a part of Andover, but that court delays could well force them into moving to another area.

If the decision comes within a short period of time, and is favorable to the town, then it would appear Raytheon would remain Andover's top taxpayer. A delay in decision would result in the loss of the electronics firm.

Schools

Undoubtedly, one of Andover's greatest assets is its schools, and 1968 found it to be not only an asset but a problem.

With an enlarging school population, the town had to provide additional funds for more classrooms.

This they did in October, when a special town meeting provided $2,250,000 for a 24-room addition to the West elementary school. The building is expected to be occupied in late 1969 or early 1970.

As the voters acted on this addition, their attention focused on the new Bancroft school under construction and to be the town's first educational building to be constructed to accommodate the ungraded, or progressive school system.

Due to open in September, delays in equipment delivery put off the opening date to after the Christmas recess. Further delays now indicate the school will not open until after the February vacation.

The opening delay forced continued double sessions at the South school where those pupils who will attend Bancroft, are now attending afternoon sessions.

It is almost a carbon copy of a year ago when the new senior high school, due to open in September 1967, failed to meet the deadline and a Christmas opening was forecast. Instead the new facility opened for the students in February of this year and released the overcrowded classrooms of the junior high school. The junior high became two, with the students separated between the East Junior High (former single junior high) and the West Junior High (former senior high school).

Already replete with educational institutions, Andover received news that it was to become the home of yet another institute of learning.

In October, Edward C. Bryant, president of Bryant-McIntosh college, Lawrence, announced plans for a 60-acre campus off Lowell street, to begin shortly and hopefully be ready for classroom occupancy in September, 1969.

Development plans call for a $4,000,000 construction schedule to include classroom, administrative, library and dormitory space.

Junior High

The East Junior High school underwent major overhaul during the summer vacation and additional work is still scheduled for what was once the town's senior high school.

The building was given new electrical work, new floors, carpeting and a general repair job. Heating repairs remain to be done under a $400,000 total appropriation to bring the building up to par.

Contracts

Contracts under collective bargaining agreements were reached during the year, one of which a historic first between the town and the Andover Firefighters union. Town Manager Richard J. Bowen signed the pact making the first time such an agreement had been reached.

The professional staff of the school system and the negotiating team from the school administration, had lengthy sessions before coming to agreement on a new contract in April. This year the negotiation session bore fruition much earlier and a salary agreement for 1969 has been reached, thus indicating that contract agreement will be reached shortly.

Projects

If the editor of the TOWNSMAN had been here steadily for the past century, he probably would have some mention about Rogers Brook each New Year's Eve. This year must be no exception.

Rogers Brook is now enclosed in an eight foot pipe from Whittier street to the Shawshen River as a result of a troublesome stage two of the total project.

Enclosing of the brook to prevent flooding began about the same time employees of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Co., went out on strike. This resulted in the delay of the project, since telephone lines had to be moved in the center of town to allow placement of the pipes.

But the brook is now enclosed, its former travels through Memorial Park enclosed by earth, and possibly its flooding tempered

Safety Center In Need Of Additional Funds

Additional funds will be requested of town meeting to complete the public safety center, according to Town Manager Richard J. Bowen.

The manager, in a memorandum to the selectmen last week, noted that he intended to award the contract to the low bidder, Raymond G. Mansour of Lawrence, within ten days, under the provisions listed by the architect and building committee. The latter have reduced the basic project to fit it to the low bid price.

Bowen said he had been in touch with the low bidder about starting work and noted that weather will be a controlling factor. The manager said the contractor is anxious to start and that in his judgment, "he must apply himself energetically to the project in order to make any money for himself."

Further funding for the project, as proposed by Bowen, totals $120,350. He said in his memorandum, that there could be differences of opinion regarding the items, but he considered them necessary to make the combined police-fire station complete and fully useable.

Three items listed, he indicates are must items and include an antenna, $3,000; curbing, seeding, topsoil and paving, $11,100 and a fire alarm base station, $35,000.

Other items listed include: planting, $3,000; seal, $900; carpeting, $7,000; pumper test pit, $3,350; police radio console, $5,000; closed circuit TV, $5,000; pistol range, $15,000; furnishings and equipment, $20,000; air conditioning, complete, $7,000; civil defense, $5,000.

Many of the items listed were deleted by the building committee in consultation with the architect in order to come within the budgetary figure of $513,000 available for construction of the new building.

The selectmen are expected to discuss the matter at their next meeting and possibly make provisions for the additional funds.

Town Meeting, Election Dates Established

A schedule for voter registration and the important dates for the municipal election and town meeting has been established by Town Clerk Irving O. Piper.

The warrant for the annual town meeting will open Friday, Jan. 24. All special articles must be filed by Friday, Jan. 31 at 4 p.m. in the office of the town clerk, at which time the warrant will be officially closed.

Candidates seeking election must file nomination papers by 5 p.m., Monday, Jan. 27. Candidates must obtain 90 signatures of registered voters in order to be eligible to have their name placed on the ballot.

Dates for registration of new voters are as follows: Monday, Jan. 20, Sacred Heart school, Shawshen, 7-9 p.m. and town house, 6-8 p.m.; Monday, Jan. 27, Grange Hall, 7-9 p.m. and town house, 6-8 p.m.; Monday, Feb. 3, Community building, Ballardvale, Peabody House, Phillips Academy, 7-9 p.m. and town house, 6-8 p.m.; Saturday, Feb. 8, town house, noon to 10 p.m. Feb. 8 is the final date for new registrations.

Flu Supposed To Have Reached Peak Locally

The Hong Kong flu should have peaked locally during the past week, according to state health authorities.

Dr. Nicholas J. Fiumara, head of the state department of communicable diseases has reported that the particular strain of this virus should have reached its highest point during the holiday period and should be on the wane.

Illness, however, continues to strike municipal departments, industry and businesses. It has however, lessened to some degree, officials report.

An actual count of those afflicted with the flu, or other viruses, is not available, since these are not diseases which must be reported to the local board of health.

During the past several weeks hundreds of local residents have been bedded with a variety of sicknesses, but the Hong Kong flu hits a person particularly hard, often leaving the victim weak for a lengthy period of time.

Christmas Tree Pickup Scheduled

Christmas tree pickup throughout the town will begin on Monday, Jan. 6, according to Town Manager Richard J. Bowen.

Public works department crews will canvass the town picking up the discarded trees and will continue, weather permitting until all are collected.

The town manager emphasized that no trees are to be taken to the town disposal site.

Residents are requested to place the trees out the night of Jan. 5 in front of their homes at the street line. The only delay will be due to adverse weather conditions which would require the crews to turn to snow plowing or sanding.

State Aid Meets Quota

State aid for this town is about on target, according to local officials.

The disbursement announced last week which would provide Andover with $148,467.04, about meets the cherry sheet estimated given to the town earlier this year. The figures are used in computing the annual tax rate.

Previously, receipts from the sales and use tax and other income from the state has not met the estimates. Apparently, according to the figures received thus far, those amounts will be met this year.

THE ANDOVER TOWNSMAN, DECEMBER 31, 1968

To be received from the state tax fund is a total of $122,229.62, while the town will also receive $26,237.42 from state aid to education funds from the sales and use tax.

All of the money will go into the general fund and will be used in figuring the tax rate for the year to come, since it will represent portions of the town's surplus account.

Attitude And Zeal Toward Work Prevalent

By George Speers
General Manager

New England Press Association

(Eleventh of a Series)

It doesn't take a visitor to West Germany very long to realize that Germany is "on the move." Activity is everywhere. People are working, working, working. But its more than that. There is something special about how work is done. There is a special attitude and zeal toward work.

I watched a number of people-- in all kinds of working situations-- and the more I saw the more the impression grew that Germans seem to take an intense pride in their work.

For instance, while waiting for a car one day, I watched an older man sweeping the street. He swept with dignity and purpose. He did not "lean" on the broom, he pushed it, and with vigor. He swept the gutter and the sidewalk. But even more amazing, he kept turning around to make certain the area was clean. I noticed he even walked back several feet to pick up a piece of paper that had blown onto the sidewalk after it was swept. A small matter, to be sure, but the more I observed other workers, the more I became convinced that this street sweeper is a sort of symbol.

In many cities, I had drivers to take me where I wished to go. It didn't take me long to discover that no matter where I happened to be in the country, every driver took great pride in doing a thorough and conscientious job. From opening and closing the doors, to checking on ventilation in the car, to locating streets and buildings, the same pride and dedication to the task prevailed.

In a couple of instances I discovered that dedication to doing the job thoroughly, definitely included opening and closing the car doors. I opened my own doors at first, but soon found out that the driver considered this his responsibility and took pride in doing it. So I didn't do it anymore.

Waiters, too, undertook their tasks with pride. I had an opportunity to watch how the task was done in dozens of instances (I did eat a great deal, it seems) across the country. Every detail is watched to make certain that the customer is pleased. Waiting on tables is an art in most places in Germany rather than a "job". And it is done with dignity.

But the coup de grace is none of these.

You might even call it operation "mop up".

One morning I happened to glance out the window into the back courtyard of the hotel. I noticed a cleaning woman vigorously mopping the back steps, a service entrance of some kind. When she reached the bottom step, she didn't stop, but kept right on and mopped the outside sidewalk. And from time to time she looked up to inspect her own work. It was clean.

I saw this happen once more. I just happened to notice another woman, from the window of the train on the way to Stuttgart or Munich, (I don't remember which) do almost exactly the same thing-- mop a back sidewalk with vigor and thoroughness.

I mention these instances--not important in themselves--to make the point about working habits and attitudes toward work. It seems to be a national characteristic that everyone works, works hard, and does a thorough and conscientious job in whatever he does.

Another impression that came through to me really is a tribute to America's farsightedness after World War II. But it is also a tribute to appreciativeness on the part of the German people towards the Americans.

I refer to the Marshall Plan aid to Germany.

This is one country that has used the money wisely and for constructive purposes. As mentioned earlier, the country is rebuilt, the economy is thriving, everyone is working, and the signs of an affluent society are everywhere.

WORK IS A CHARACTERISTIC that stands out in Germany. Everywhere people are working and workingmen and women take great pride in what they do for a living. The post war German economy has expanded to the point where severe labor shortages exist in many occupations. Laborers from Spain, Italy, Greece, Yugoslavia, Turkey, and other countries work for months and even years for the higher wages in Germany.

I wasn't very surprised to hear laudatory comments about American economic aid when talking to German Government officials. That is to be expected. I was quite surprised to hear, however, taxi drivers, housewives, and, especially, critical students refer to this in praiseworthy comments. One gets an interesting feeling (I did at least) on hearing very critical comments from students about many of America's great problems on one hand, yet on the other accolades about how the U.S. had rebuilt Europe and other parts of the world after the war.

It is quite clear that this massive aid has not been forgotten. Certainly not in West Germany.

FROM THE GREEKS

The scaling, itching skin affliction, which we call "psoriasis" today, was known to the ancient Greeks as alphos. The Greeks not only had a word for it, they also discovered remedies based on coal tar to treat it.

Over the centuries, pharmacy has developed many other preparations to cope with psoriasis; but to this day, physicians consider products containing coal tar derivatives as their remedies of choice.

Whether your skin suffers from alphos or any other affliction, you can count on your pharmacy to have the remedy your doctor recommends.

Gold Certificates Awarded To Junior High Students

Andover West Junior High School has received notification from the National Educational Development Test officials that 52 ninth grade students have been awarded gold certificates. The certificates are presented to students who score in the top 10 percent of their grade nationally. This year's awards represent the second year the number of students receiving the award has increased and places 27 percent of the ninth grade in this special category.

The National Educational Development Test is designed to give junior high school educators the same type of information and services offered by the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test. This year over 500,000 students throughout the country participated in the examination. The results of the examination are used as a basis for planning program, individual counseling and stimulating greater academic diligences at the Junior High.

The five basic areas measured were: English Usage, Mathematics Usage, Social Studies, Reading and Natural Sciences Reading and Word Usage.

The student scores are reported in a standardized manner so that each student may see where he stands among others at the same level all over the country. In addition local percentile scores are given to show the student where he stands among others at his local grade level.

others working full tilt to meet the demands expected the day after New Year's - Thursday. To date the temporary operations have been running well, he said.

Trombly picked up where MBTA left off last Friday. He put school buses out to meet local needs and had coaches available for Boston runs.

He is running similar schedules as the MBTA had, or the old Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co., which was taken over by the MBTA.

His initial schedule includes Andover in a triangular run with North Andover and Lawrence, thus giving persons in the Merrimack College area, service they did not have before.

Trombly is also serving the Lowell area and is combining this service with the inclusion of the former Railroad avenue (or Waverly Road) and High street in North Andover.

Dispatcher Joseph Trombly noted that the buses are making almost half-hour runs to the Andover and North Andover locations formerly served by MBTA at hourly stops.

Frank Trombly noted that his service is meeting the demands of both the Internal Revenue Service on Lowell Street and Raytheon in Shawsheen.

He said he intends to provide more service to the local area and also to have more drivers available to meet the demands of the service.

During the difficult driving periods on Saturday, with freezing rain, etc., the Trombly firm lost only one run, that one the final run to Boston shortly after 5 p.m. Many other bus firms had pulled their buses off by that time.

For Andover, it could mean additional tax revenue. If the Trombly firm is successful in picking up the MBTA operation at no expense to the local taxpayer, the local company will have to expand. Already additional office space has been provided by the proprietor of the company.

With the Wilmington school bus runs not necessary, Trombly was able to put the school buses to local use. Financially it would have been prohibitive to put regular buses on the routes before Jan. 1, having to pay a full year taxes, etc., registering them to accommodate the public for only a few days of 1968.

As of Thursday, bus service to all points in Greater Lawrence will have an Andover address - and at no cost to the local taxpayer.

Trombly foresees a public transportation picture for himself that will meet the demands of the public and a profitable one to private enterprise. To people in the Greater Lawrence area, there is a hope that his dream comes true.

Beauty

By Mary

Complexion care is important in all seasons but particularly in winter. How can you care for dry, flaky and parched winter skin when you have no time or patience for long, tiring beauty routines? Cold cream is the best solution. It cleans and creams your skin in one quick and easy step. Cold cream flushes out dirt and dead skin cells from weather-worn complexions. It softens pores, makes dry lines disappear and even helps heal blemishes. Pamper your complexion daily to protect it from the drying effects of harsh winter weather.

Protect your hair from the harsh winter elements, too. Come to CAPILO HAIR STYLISTS, 2 Riverina Rd., Shawsheen-Andover for complete beauty service. Tel. 475-1639. Open 9-6. Fri. 9-8. Sale & Service of Hairpieces. Ample Parking.

HELPFUL HINT:
If you have to store linen, avoid starching, because starch makes linen crack. Wrap linen in blue paper to avoid yellowing.

Great Books

What is good Leadership?
What personal traits are necessary in a good leader?

These are only a few examples of the basic questions to be asked when the Great Books Group meets and discusses Shakespeare's play, Richard II, on Tuesday, Jan. 7, at 7:30 p.m. in the Print Room at Memorial Hall Library.

The Great Books discussion meetings are free and open to the public. New members are welcome to start at any meeting. Present members come from the entire Greater Lawrence area. The only requirement is the reading of the selected material before each meeting in order to be able to participate in the discussion. Material may be borrowed from the library or purchased from the group.

Besides fellowship with other thoughtful adults, the group offers an opportunity to obtain a liberal education in the most satisfactory way. The Great Books program invites its members to learn to read with greater understanding, to learn to communicate with greater ease, to learn to evaluate the opinion of others, and to learn to think for oneself.

A New Year

A new year dawns tomorrow — one, we trust, filled with hope and happiness.

Filled with hope that the days ahead will bring to us all that peace we pray for so often. Hope that we shall have the health we need to sustain the days, weeks and years ahead.

Hope that in 1969, the problems we encountered, not only in 1968, but in the years behind us, will pass and we shall face a bright future.

Happiness in knowing that despite another year having passed, there are brighter days. For the enjoyable times of the past, we must be thankful, and for those days and times when things were not just to our liking, so too, we must be thankful for having the ability, the fortitude, the understanding, to bear with our problems.

It is a new year which will dawn tomorrow. It is almost like the routine figure of New Years portrayed by the old man with the scythe, passing on another year to the infant — truly the handing over of the old to the new.

But it is more than that. There is significance in that symbol. For in all its almost annual cliché type symbolism of New Years, there is a symbol of truth.

To the infant, there is that practically holiness of the innocence of infancy in the New Year.

To the bearded man, there is the feeling that in the year, just passed, much has been accomplished, yet not all he had hoped for in his brief space of time.

How true for all of us.

To all of us there is a message. How much we hope to accomplish from day to day, yet in a frustrating way we never seem to meet our goal.

Tonight there will be frivolity, as people toast a new year.

There will be thoughts, no matter how brief, about the year past and the year ahead.

There will be brief reflections on how wonderful it would be to have a peaceful world, brotherhood in this the greatest nation of the world.

How many will stop to think of the blessings which already have descended on this great nation at the outset of another year?

Will the New Year's eve celebration darken the thoughts of a grateful nation to those men of the — — —

U. S. S. Pueblo

— — — who were released just last week after almost a year in captivity of the Communists?

That they are back with their families is something we should all be thankful for, and one which should inspire joy in the coming of a new year.

Regardless of whatever means were used to bring these men back, it is a source of joy to us all to have them back home and reunited with their families.

This, indeed, brings joy to us as we look forward to 1969, and adding even further happiness, is the splash-down of — — — — — — Whose heroic crew travelled further on one trip than any other person.

Apollo 8

To Colonel Frank Borman, Captain James A. Lovell, Jr., and Major William A. Anders, a nation extends its everlasting gratitude for their courage, endurance, and efforts in putting America number one in space.

That three men can separate themselves from their family at this holiday season, then laugh and joke about a dangerous mission — pause to read from the Bible on Christmas day — must afford considerable consolation to the people of America.

Their mission is truly commendable.

We realize that this commentary is not strictly related to Andover.

But, our comment here, is to bring home to Andover, the blessings we share with others.

Already, before a new year begins, there have been accomplishments, there has been hope and happiness as we harken the arrival of another year.

As the days pass we must anticipate sadness and despair, but with God's help a bright future lies ahead as the new year unfolds.

With His help and guidance, 1969 will bring us closer to the peace we so much seek, the togetherness we all want, the return to authority which we must have.

To this end, let us pray that 1969, will be a bountiful year, reminding ourselves that the prayers of mankind were answered at the end of 1968.

Continued trust in Him in the year ahead assuredly will bring us closer to our goals.

Off The Top Of The Desk

One of the most frustrating experiences Christmas morning is to have one of those new children's toys requiring batteries and not to have the power devices available.

How often it happens and the father makes a mad dash to the nearest store only to find that the batteries are sold out, then returns to a tearful offspring who has suddenly found that his prize possession, which will probably be broken in 24 hours, won't run because Santa failed to provide the batteries.

Converse Rubber Co., of which Tye Rubber Co., is a division, recently had one of its employees placed in the Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield. Charles H. "Chuck" Taylor, has been elected to national honor as a contributor to the game.

Last week's cold weather certainly kept garage men on the hop. We noticed that most all service stations were doing their best to keep up to the rush of automobiles marooned by freezing conditions. We also noticed the limited number of persons on the street due to the sub-zero temperatures. Even Christmas gift exchanges appeared to be limited, until the weather improved.

What Our Readers Say—

To the editor of the TOWNSMAN: The cogent editorial in the TOWNSMAN of December 12 and entitled "Sex-Teachers-Parents" is agreeable. However, the following is another approach.

We hear a good deal about this day's style in education being significant and imaginative; that something new under the sun has been found. If so, that is all to the good. But this latest education program for expanding the costs of education, not to mention the teacher shortage aspects of the plan, leaves room for correction.

Sex is something that is no longer taboo and that most youngsters do not need to be prodded into becoming aware of. Therefore sex need not be made into a special course. But the special aspects of sex can be inculcated by encouraging the school administrators to gather the present abundance of written and pictorial information into a compact booklet. Or contact can be made with the proper Washington authority (Health and Welfare I would assume). It can be asked to supply the compact booklets they have. Those selected could be obtained from the Government Printing Office at something less than 50 cents each.

Then the teachers of English, Composition, etc. could, as a by-product of their teaching, use the booklet as a subject for compositions 2 or 3 times a year. The facts of sex would then be inculcated as a by-product of other learning. The same can be said for the other subjects which it is proposed to make into special courses under the suggested plan.

Moreover, there would be the added gain, and an important one too, to both town and state that, in this day of a pressing shortage of teachers and directors, the use of the above method of by-product teaching, would free two people with proved ability

In North Andover center during the holiday period, the statue of Phillips Brooks is illuminated. Rev. Dr. Phillips Brooks, an Episcopal minister wrote the traditional carol, "O Little Town of Bethlehem," 100 years ago this year. The statue faces the North Parish church in the center. The church was the original worship place for Andover over 300 years ago before the towns of Andover and North Andover separated. The South church, here in Andover, built several years after the North Parish, became the worship place for the south section of the town of Andover.

Andover was among the communities listed as contributing to the pollution of the Merrimack river in a recent report on conditions of the waterway.

Federal officials, speaking in Concord, N.H., listed all Greater Lawrence communities as contributors toward making the Merrimack one of the filthiest rivers in the U.S.

While industry was not mentioned in Andover's case, the town deposits its waste into the Merrimack through a long route, carrying it by pipe through Lawrence and depositing it into the Merrimack in North Andover a short distance from the Route 495 overpass.

for useful teaching in other school systems.

Also, while on this subject of teacher shortage, it is suggested that Andover's teachers set a good example by doing, say 2% more work each day. That would make a saving of 6 teachers out of 300 possible. The six would then be available in other schools thereby relieving, to some extent, the over all state shortage. Doing that the local teachers would be doing a signal honor to their profession and to their town and so, above all, to themselves.

The money earned by the saving of six places could be divided in this manner: 33% divided amongst the participating teachers, 33% to the school system and 33% to the taxpayers.

Imagination can be used for cutting costs and increasing service as well as expanding costs, etc.

With every good wish,

Karl Haartz

To the editor of the TOWNSMAN:

The world looks better because it's the Christmas season. People feel better and all a bit quieter, everywhere. There are a few places which cause grave concern, but the sun keeps shining. The Astronauts are on their arduous and somewhat risky journey to the moon. Praise the Lord, all is well so far. With these courageous Americans may they have a safe landing. We are also happy about the release of war prisoners. There is some good in the hearts of all men. We have to reach it and bring it to the front and push away all the evil that men do. There are many souls who are in search of contentment. That's the one thing that all mankind must have to make our world a better place than it is now. The forces for good do outnumber the evil ones. Though the destruction by the minority seems to be calamitous.

We cannot condone any groups that would destroy life and property. There must be an end and there will come a day when peace of mind will be restored to all mankind. God so declares it. We are all in accord with the Peace Makers. Let our prayers be said for them and for peace. Many of us were in Europe during the Christmas season of 1917 and later in the 40s where we prayed for peace and it came. Peace will come again, keep praying, God is listening. Our boys all over the world who are in the armed forces of America are waiting to come home to peace and happiness again.

Let us all endeavor to think less of thy self and more for the man in need everywhere. Just a little help from you wondrous things can be done to ease the strain and misery of those in need. By just a little help from you. May the season of good will be in your hearts.

on its course to a Shawsheen River destination.

The other major town project revolved around the public safety center to be located on the former site of the Tye Rubber Company on North Main Street.

A building committee has come up with a plan to provide a combined police and fire station for the town within an appropriation of $513,000.

This is still under study and possibly in 1969, the town may see some construction of new public safety facilities. Town Manager Bowen feels additional funds will be required from the 1969 town meeting, but there is a possibility that a new facility will rise in the year ahead.

Leash Law

The year 1968 will be known as the year that Andover adopted a dog leash law, then failed to provide the funds to enforce the regulations.

It is far from a dead issue. It is even more controversial now than when proposed at the March town meeting. It is anticipated that it will be placed before the 1969 annual town meeting again, this time for either repeal, or a request for adequate funds to make the law enforceable.

Elections

The town voted for the first time electronically in November, standing firmly behind Richard M. Nixon, the Republican candidate for the presidency.

The punch card operation speeded up the voting returns.

Re-elected to a full term in the Massachusetts House was Paul W. Cronin who defeated James P. Hurrell of North Andover in the race to represent precincts one, five and six in Andover and all of North Andover.

Personalities

On the personal side of the news in 1968, a popular young priest left Andover for a promotion to pastor in Lawrence. Rev. James A. Wenzel, O.S.A., assistant priest at St. Augustine's parish for many years, was assigned to the pastorate of St. Augustine's church on Tower Hill.

J. Everett Collins was awarded the Founders' Day award as municipal employee of the year. An assistant in the music department in the Andover public schools, Collins has been noted for years for his work with the Andover Male choir. He is a former selectman and state representative.

Dave Bennett, an Andover High school football co-captain, went on to fame at Boston College, establishing scoring records and voted the winner of the O'Melia trophy emblematic of the top performance in the traditional Boston College - Holy Cross game.

Harold R. Rafton, Andover's Mr. Conservation, was honored by the Andover Village Improvement Society, when the group remanded one of its reservations for him. Mr. Rafton has been involved in conservation work locally for many years.

Robbery

The Addison Gallery of American Art at Phillips Academy, was hit twice by thieves who stole silver from display cases. The first time was in February and the silver was returned following payment of a sum of money. The silver was placed on a river bank in Lawrence.

The second time was in December, when the collection which includes silver worked by Paul Revere, was again taken from the cases and burglar alarm equipment failed to activate. This time the collection has not been regained by the academy, and officials fear it has left the state.

Bids Due On Heating System

Bids on the major project to be undertaken in the refurbishing of the East Junior High school, will be received on Jan. 7 by Town Manager Richard J. Bowen.

Proposals for repairing the heating system at the school are due on that date.

The project is part of the $400,000 renovation of the former high school building which is expected to make the building functional for continued educational use by the town as a junior high school.

Considerable refurbishing was done this past summer.

Luncheon For Elderly Set For Jan. 7

The regular monthly luncheon sponsored by the Andover Council on Aging will be held Tuesday, Jan. 7, at the Greater Lawrence Regional Vocational Technical High School on River Road.

The 50¢ luncheon will start at 1 p.m. Buses will leave the Andover Haven on Barnard Street at 12:30 to transport people to the school. Reservations are necessary and it would be helpful if they were made by Jan. 3. They may be placed either in person at Andover Haven or by phone - 475-3968.

One of the features of the meeting will be the election of a nominating committee who will prepare a slate of officers for the group to be voted upon at a subsequent meeting. All Andover citizens 60 and over are welcome to attend the luncheon and to avail themselves of the facilities of the Drop-in Center, Andover Haven.

We are moving toward a transportation crisis in this country. It is seen by many experts, but gets little attention from the public - except when it is inconvenienced.

LOOKING AHEAD

I submit that our cities, our urban center, our suburbs, our towns and villages are lacking in goals or objectives and, thus, so susceptible to the errors which are so difficult, so expensive if at all possible to correct.

What is Andover's essential character? It is a community of open space - open space which is fast disappearing without our really realizing it. I, for one, would hope that a continuation of this trend or its discontinuation would be the result of the Andover community having decided that this is the way it wants to be.

Marauding beavers and mangy foxes, notwithstanding, Andover's future remains bright if we but lend ourselves to the task of solving the problems that stand before us as we have proven ourselves capable of doing in the past.

"What America needs are loud and clear voices to be heard crying out against those who ought to be told off. Individual freedom has produced a permissiveness in which too few are willing to speak out against the unclean in mind and body, the disrupters, the law flouters, the rebels bent not on constructive reform but on destruction . . . What they're really out to destroy is a pretty good way of life, the best ever produced by any nation."

Voke Students Win Contest

Town of Andover honors in the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S. 1968 Voice of Democracy contest went to students from the Greater Lawrence Regional Vocational Technical High School.

Phillip Marcello, a junior at the West Andover school won first place in the speechwriting competition sponsored by Post 2128 of Andover and will represent the town of Andover in the Essex County finals to be held in Georgetown in late January. Second place went to Francis Fletcher of Lawrence, and third place to John Wadsworth of Methuen, both juniors at the local school. Sophomore Douglas Dawe of Lawrence was the fourth place winner.

An annual affair, the contest is open to all high school students and consists of composing and later recording a 3-5 minute speech on positive aspects of the American patriotic heritage. The 1968 theme was Freedom's Challenge and gave the participants an opportunity to make a meaningful examination of the traditions and institutions of American Democracy as they relate to current events.

The winners received their trophies and certificates Dec. 19 at an assembly held at the regional school on River Road. Representing Post 2128 Commander Gordon Cannon was John Doherty, chairman of the 1968 voice of democracy contest, who presented the trophies to the winners and various faculty members who were instrumental in conducting the contest at the school.

Assisting in the presentation was Albert Porter of Raytheon-Andover which provided the winners' trophies through its Industrial and Community Relations department.

Cold Weather, Flu Fails To Halt Shoppers

The Hong Kong Flu and the often bitter cold did not deter area shoppers from frequenting the many shops along Main Street this Christmas season, according to an Andover Chamber of Commerce spokesman. The consensus among Main Street retailers is that the Christmas season was a very good one.

One merchant said that he had a minor reservation at the beginning of the season because of the late Thanksgiving and the widespread illness. "But today's shopper is an extremely thoughtful person and she plans ahead. I guess almost nothing can prevent people from having the best Christmas possible", he observed.

This year found many innovations within Andover's shopping area. The major change was the new Christmas lights which appropriately highlighted the trees along Main Street. These replaced the across-the-street stringers.

The Christmas lights, as in past years, were underwritten by many Andover businesses and professional firms.

The Andover Chamber of Commerce sponsored various music groups from the Merrimack Valley to provide seasonal concerts for area shoppers. Two of these groups were the Andover Townsman Chorus and the Morning Belles of Haverhill, an English handbell ringing group.

The Christmas lighting effort was coordinated by George E. Heseltine, chairman of the Chamber's Retail Committee.

YW To Have Luncheon

Mrs. Willard Currier, president of the Greater Lawrence Y.W.C.A. announces the first luncheon of the new year to be held at the Y.W. on Wednesday, Jan. 8 at 12:30. The simple inexpensive luncheon will be open to all women in the greater Lawrence area and to pre-school children whose mothers want to attend.

Following the luncheon Dr. Nina Scarito will present a talk entitled "Doctor, I'm so tired".

The family was away during the afternoon, according to a report filed by Patrolmen Jacob J. Jacobson and John J. Murray, who investigated. The family returned home about 5:30 p.m. to find the home entered and the articles missing.

A neighbor went to the Boloian home about 3:30 p.m. and found the rear door open and unable to arouse anyone left the premises.
